

About CBCT

CBCT is an Incorporated Charitable Trust that offers a range of community-based support services for adults and youth affected by mental illness, intellectual disability and head injury. CBCT has been providing support services for over 30 years where it began as the Villa 3 scheme taking people from Cherry Farm Hospital and providing group homes in the community.

CBCT provides the following services in the greater Dunedin area:

- Residential care
- Home based support
- Services to Maori
- Child & Youth home-based support and Residential care.

To access CBCT services you may need to have a current Needs Assessment.

The focus of the Trust in all its activities is defined by its commitment to excellence, its work to keep people in control of their own lives and promoting well-being. Staff are required to have a personal commitment to the principles of rehabilitation and recovery and acknowledgement of our responsibilities under Te Tiriti o Waitangi.

The activities of the Trust build on people's strengths and promote wellbeing in all aspects of their life to enable them to live an ordinary life and contribute to the community of their choice.

Philosophy

The Corstorphine Baptist Community Trust bases its activities on the following core beliefs and values:

- The inherent value of all people regardless of race, creed, ability or circumstances
- The rights and obligations of service users to participate as an integral part of all service planning, provision and evaluation
- The rights of the people affected by disability to live within the community
- Commitment to the principles of partnership, participation and protection as encompassed within Te Tiriti o Waitangi.

Aim

To maximise the strengths of people affected by mental illness, intellectual disability and head injury and promote wellbeing in all aspects of their lives.
